“ *Brandon, It's been almost a year since your passing. It's unbelievable how the world changes and how someones death can affect a family's veiw on the future. I have had my own moments where life wasnt such an option for me after i lost my grandparents. But, with the love of family and friends i was able to look into a box of pictures and remember happy times without thinking about the sad. Even after 2 years i still remember in detail the day my grandpa passed...it was so unexpected and i think it shocked me into thinking that without him, life didnt have a meaning anymore... i wont go into details about that day, b.c ill cry and its already hard not to shed tears while writing this...even though we didnt know eachother well, a passing is always hard, even to a complete stranger... well..this is long so heres my goodbye and hope heaven is just like my grandpa thought it to be. Peaceful, and a world where nothing could go wrong, were loved ones are reunited and happy :)
...always...

“ Dear Brandon,
Your Birthday was yesterday, and we miss you more and more each day... I kept telling myself that the pain we all feel from losing you will some day be a little less... Some day we will think of you and smile, remember the Love you gave in your short time here without feeling such overwhelming pain and loss. I felt the wind blowing yesterday, and I told myself that it was you blowing out your candles one more time. I miss you so much, Poncho... we all do!!!!
With Love Forever,
Auntie Emmy.

“ I miss you so much. I hope to see you soon. Say hi to Grandma for me. I will see you soon for sho. I remember the mustard fights we used to have, the apple fights out in front of grandmas front yard and the house of leaves that all of us would make. And the picnics that we would have out in the front yard. And all the holidays that the whole family would have together. The holidays will never be the same since your gone and grandma is gone. But I think positive about it. I just think yous two are in a better place. Both of use don't have to go through pain anymore. I miss you and grandma so much but I know I'll see yous two some day soon.

I luv you and I miss you Luv Sarah - Cousin
