“ There is a special bond between a Grandmother and her Granddaughter. Maybe because they spoil you and let you get away with things, but maybe because as a grandmother they get to relax. They can love every minute of their time with each grandchild because they know how quickly their own children grow up. They get to rekindle all the amazing memories they had of holding a baby, taking a toddler's hand, teaching to roll ravioli filling. There are so many things I will keep with me about my Gramma Grunts and if I'm lucky get to share with my own grandchildren

The first was her quick wit. She always knew what to say – as a joke or sentimentally or practically. She wasn't easily duped (especially be a mischievous child) and could put you in your place in a heartbeat. She was going to tell you straightforwardly but only if you needed to be told. Otherwise she would not give it any more consideration. She was all of our caretaker. But luckily, I got to spend time, significant time, with her my entire life. When I was little, I had the most joy from driving around with Gramma to go to Kresège's or when I was being especially persuasive to Mister Donuts. She was generous and kind, the best grandma.

There is no doubt that I will try my very best to channel her every time I make any meal, but that also goes for her green thumb. Christmas cacti were in bloom all year round at her house. Her garden was the best place to be. Her tomato plants were amazing - really everything she did was amazing. Her yard was perfect. Lilacs, green onions, Lily of the valley, snowball hydrangea... but most I'll remember her front porch and swinging with her and singing songs. Or playing with the random decks of cards in every drawer of her house. Or listening to her speak Italian through the upstairs grate in the floor. Or helping her straighten out skeins of yarn. Or going to the corner to buy her milk. Or how every dog loved her. To be continued...

“ (Continued from below) Or when she would eat the rinds of oranges. Or picking strawberries, or raspberries, or blueberries, or blackberries...

She put every effort into everything she did and that never stopped. Her house was huge and it was immaculately taken care of each day that she inhabited it and everywhere else she laid her head. She always knew what you wanted and was sure to make a special something for every visitor she had. Gramma certainly knew her way around the kitchen. You could try to help her out but in the end you'd here "let me do it" and she would take over. Making Thanksgiving dinner was a combination of an Italian smorgasbord and the most amazing Turkey dinner with stuffing that still makes my mouth water. All my Thanksgiving memories are truly something that I will cherish. I am extremely thankful that our last one together was so memorable. I will also never forget the Thanksgiving when we got the clock messed up and got up for the sales at 12:25 a.m. instead of 5:00 a.m.

I loved that she liked to watch boxing. I loved they way her skin felt. I loved her wedding ring that she wore every day. I loved when she would tell the story about how her husband would call her "sour pickles." I loved decorating her Christmas tree with her. I loved her manual push lawn mower. I loved her laugh. Most, I just loved being her granddaughter. When she said, "my Kris" and she referred to my kids as "her little angels" nothing beats that - except knowing that she is our angel now.

“ I have lots of good memories of Aunt Dorothy. I would stay at Aunt Dorothy's house a week or so each summer; hung out with Pat . Aunt Dorothy had to put up with a lot of shenanigans that Pat & I pulled on her & Mary. Aunt Dorothy was such a good cook & kept us well fed! Her pasties were the greatest! I will never forget the good times I had in Iron Mountain. Our thoughts and prayers are with the family. Love to all, Jim and Sharon
