“ This morning I woke up from a dream that you were in Justin. For the last hour I have been trying to find something on the internet to pay my condolences to your family. I know its been many years since you have past but only seems like yesterday I saw you for the last time before I left for Iraq. We had so many great memories growing up together and I just wanted to let you know that you will never be forgotten! Since I found out about the accident I have made a point to visit the cold ground you lost your life on every October since I have been home from the war. I miss you and will see you on the other side someday.....
