“ Marilyn is my sister who was just three years older than me.

As children, we behaved like most brothers and sisters...in that we laughed, cried, sang, complained, fought, boxed (yes, boxed). My dad would give us the boxing gloves and we'd have at it. Marilyn would always win, so I eventually lost interest in boxing.

Marilyn had a strong artistic side of her. She took much joy in various kinds of artistic endeavors, eventually settling into sculpturing of small dolls made from clay...all of which were one-of-a-kind, quite unique, and required great patience.

I know I speak for many, in that she will be greatly missed.
