Terry's loved ones remember him as a man who always smiled no matter his level of physical pain, willing to lend a tool, and a man filled with holistic knowledge beyond his years. Terry loved supporting his Green Bay Packers, spending time with his wife, talking to his grandkids, and hunting. "In the end, it's not the years in your life that count. It's the life in your years," and it is no doubt Terry served his country and his family with his.
