“ I am so sorry about your loss. Tom was a great man. He spent alot of time in the last couple months with our family. My 2 year old daughter loved him. She would see his truck and say look momma Tom's here. He was always willing to lend a helping hand. He fit right in with all our friends and everyone loved having him around. We will miss him so much as I know you will too. I am thankful to have known him even if it was just a short time.

“ I was in Milwaukee (Sussex) only a few days ago and managed to see this happy lad after a few phone calls... and I would not give up! I did not have enough time to stay very long. I regret that now, of course.

I wrote this for my young friend, Tom. R.I.P.

My Young Friend

*Today I read your name in the daily paper and then I had to stop again and wonder Each day the world turns it grows a little colder
I get reminded no man can live forever Tonight I will try to remember that last time that you and I were together
I see your face while you wave four fingers then you smile and say "I will catch you later"*

This is the time I will need to see your sister and the man she chose to be your brother I have happy thoughts I will give her with compassion and all the comfort I can offer We will talk of why we all try to start over and how on that last day I told you to get better Every life is filled with pain and pleasure while we wait to take that last sad adventure

*You took me on a tour of that fancy mansion you were living in I told all my tall tales about the sails and sunsets I have seen You made my day when you came such a long way just to see me
You will never know now until we meet again
I am running on that long trail right behind you my young friend*

We made plans to meet again in the near future when I will be on my way to meet my lover I had to hurry on that day and cross the river before the sunset grew too much darker As each day passes now I see more disaster and no man can be master or commander We live our lives filled with pain and pleasure waiting to take that last sad adventure

*I am planning to move on soon before I hear any more sad news
I lost a lot of what I thought were friends here I did not try to lose Tales of tragedy follow me like dark clouds blow across the sky Life can seem like a long war where all that is born lives to die*

*My lady will take me on a tour of that fancy mansion she is living in I will tell her all my tall tales about the sails and sunsets we will see
She will make my day when she comes a long way just to see me
You will never know now until we meet again
I am running on that long trail right behind you my young friend*

We are all running on that long trail right behind my young friend
